FEBRUARY 2026 NEWSLETTER

NYMC TO WELCOME OCCUPATIONAL THERAPY STUDENTS THIS WINTER AND SPRING

Several times per year, cohorts of occupational therapy students come to New York Memory Center for educational experiences as part of their academic curriculum. Occupational therapy is all about developing, building, and maintaining meaningful activities and connections in everyday life. These are especially important for people affected by memory loss. The partnerships are mutually beneficial for Center members who gain from the students' specialized knowledge, and for the students who learn about maximizing independence and quality of life.

Presently, the Center has collaborations with four schools of occupational therapy across New York City: Columbia University, Yeshiva University, SUNY Downstate, and New York University. This month, the Center welcomes Yeshiva students Mia Gerzberg and Chloe Krasne for a six-week rotation! They are both excited to meet and support the Center community.

Our annual caregiver satisfaction survey is now live online!

I would like to ask a moment of your time to complete a brief online survey about you and your loved one's experiences with New York Memory Center over the past year. Your feedback helps us continually evaluate and improve our programs and services. The survey is hosted via Google Forms and is anonymous, and should take about five minutes to complete. Please take care not to leave any personally identifying information in any comments you may leave. Thank you in advance for your participation!

Here is the link to the survey:

New York Memory Center

New York Memory Center is funded in part by the New York State Office for the Aging (NYSOFA), the New York State Department of Health, New York City Aging (DFTA), and donations large and small from donors of all kinds. Thank you!

Caregiver Topic of the Month: Heart Health

February is often called “Heart Health Month,” but for many caregivers, heart health is not something that comes up just once a year. Conditions like high blood pressure, high cholesterol, and heart disease are part of daily life, for both caregivers and for the people they love. The good news is that supporting heart health does not require big, overwhelming changes. Small, steady steps really do matter.

One of the simplest and most powerful tools for heart health is movement. This does not mean strenuous workouts or anything that feels intimidating. Gentle exercise — like stretching, chair-based movement, light walking, or guided group exercise — helps keep blood flowing, supports circulation, and can improve mood and energy. At the Memory Center, our gentle exercise and stretching programs are designed specifically with safety, comfort, and dignity in mind. Even small amounts of regular movement can help support cardiovascular health while also reducing stiffness and promoting relaxation.

Another important piece is routine. Hearts like consistency. Regular daily rhythms, such as mealtimes, activity, rest, and sleep, help the body function more smoothly. Caregivers often put themselves last, but keeping a predictable routine can benefit everyone in the household. When caregivers eat regularly, stay hydrated, and take brief movement breaks, they are also caring for their own hearts.

Food choices play a role too, though this does not have to mean rigid rules or giving up everything enjoyable. Simple shifts, such as adding more fruits and vegetables, choosing whole grains when possible, and limiting overly salty or heavily processed foods, can support heart health over time. Shared meals can also be an opportunity for connection and calm, which matters more than we often realize.

It’s also worth remembering that stress affects the heart. Caregiving can be emotionally demanding, and chronic stress takes a toll on the body. Moments of social connection, laughter, music, and shared activity help reduce stress and support emotional well-being. These moments are not “extras,” but rather they are part of caring for the whole person.

Finally, heart health is not about perfection. It is about doing what is realistic and sustainable. Gentle movement, supportive routines, nourishing food, and meaningful connection all add up. Caregivers are already doing so much. Recognizing that everyday choices — and supportive programs like those at the Memory Center — are helping both caregivers and their loved ones stay healthier can be reassuring.

This February, we encourage caregivers to think of heart health not as another task on the list, but as something woven into daily life — one stretch, one shared meal, one supportive moment at a time.

Program Spotlight: Stretch and Move Exercise

While the Memory Center emphasizes overall brain health, we also understand the importance of integrating physical activity into daily life. The Memory Center’s programming includes many types of gentle activity approachable to members of all abilities, such as seated arm and leg stretches, creative movement to music, and physical games that encourage moving the body. With careful attention to mobility needs and fall prevention, physical activity is an integral part of well-being.

Upcoming Community Integration Opportunities and Activities

*Most programs listed are tailored for people affected by memory loss and their caregivers.
Advance registration is required for all programs - please check websites for details!*

Met Memory Cafe - Monday February 2nd at 2pm

Enjoy an afternoon of art, activities, and refreshments at the Metropolitan Museum of Art. This event is meant to engage people living with dementia in conversations around art, and holding space for people to socialize and connect. The Met is also featuring all-day programming on Saturday, February 7th starting at 12pm to celebrate Lunar New Year - the Year of the Horse.

Arts & Minds at the Studio Museum in Harlem - Tuesday February 3rd at 2pm

Join us for an interactive gallery tour of the Studio Museum in Harlem's exhibition From Now: A Collection in Context. This program invites adults with memory disorders and their caregivers to explore new experiences with art. From Now: A Collection in Context presents a rich tapestry of Black artistic production, highlighting more than two hundred years of achievements by artists of African descent. The exhibition explores the evolving artistic canon through the diverse interests, practices, and voices of these artists. This tour is free of charge and requires advanced reservation.

JM Journeys at the Jewish Museum - Wednesday February 11th at 2pm

Participants with Alzheimer's disease and related dementias and their care partners are invited to join a lively and creative program that encourages personal connections to original works of art and each other. This program will explore portraiture in the Jewish Museum's collection and Joan Semmel: In the Flesh through facilitated discussions, multi-sensory experiences, and art making.

Jazz at the American Folk-Art Museum - Wednesday February 18th at 1pm

Enjoy jazz standards from the American Songbook with guitarist Jeff Wurtzel and special guests in The Museum's galleries. This is a popular program so advance registration and arriving early are recommended. Be sure to also check out the Museum's monthly online program "Folk Art Reflections" on the first Thursday of each month.

Brooklyn Botanic Garden - Friday February 20th at 1:30pm

Join us for a special winter-season guided tour of the Brooklyn Botanic Garden, followed by a hands-on horticultural activity. Delight in seasonal highlights, connect with nature, and enjoy a sensory experience. This is a leisurely stroll with plenty of stopping opportunities and is wheelchair and walker friendly.

~~SPECIAL LONG ISLAND PROGRAM HIGHLIGHTS~~

Art in Action at the Parrish Museum - Friday February 20th at 11am (NEW!)

In The Moment at the Long Island Museum - Wednesday February 25th at 2pm (NEW!)
