

Spring 2022

Dear Friends,

It's Spring! Soon our little garden by the ramp entrance will be filled with flowers and the cherry blossoms will welcome members to our door. If the weather cooperates we'll get to enjoy some programs outdoors soon.

New York Memory Center has been open for in-person programming since July 2021 after the pandemic lockdown ended. It's such a pleasure to have members returning and new members joining us every week. We've been careful to maintain mask and vaccination requirements to keep everyone as safe as possible.

Like all of you, we are hopeful for the future, for a return to something close to normal. Getting back to financial security is liable to take longer, especially with rising gas prices for our vans, higher food prices for lunches, and higher costs all around. Your financial support today will really make a difference in helping to offset these increases.

Every day we see the benefit of our programs on the faces of those who attend programs at New York Memory Center. We hear the gratitude from caregivers like Maria Georgakopoulos, whose mother-in-law attended the Center:

“ We have fond memories of the center. I can't express how much it enriched our lives in many ways. It was educational, as well as healing to our family to know that there are so many caring people at the center that make such a difference in people's lives. Thank you and the center for educating me about Alzheimer's and patience. ”

Please give as generously as you can to ensure that we will be here for as long as we are needed. Use the return envelope, call us with a credit card donation, or give online through Network for Good at nymemorycenter.org.

Thank you! Enjoy spring!

Sincerely,
